A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT

Mrs Barbara Harding

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you to our 5th production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Patience" and to share with you the pleasure and excitement of another show. We also thank you for your support and patronage which does so much to ensure the continued success of the Society.

This week's performance may well serve to introduce you to "Patience". At the time the opera was being written a craze for the aesthetic was sweeping leisured society in Britain. Gilbert, always quick to ridicule a current fashion wrote this very clever witty skit to which Sullivan set one of his most melodious scores. Their unique partnership ensured that "Patience" was a great success, and remains a firm favourite to this day.

Turning to matters more prosaic I am sure you will be pleased that, having suffered a succession of temporary workshops, the Society has at last had the good fortune to find premises which we hope will serve for many years providing much needed storage and work space.

Great news too from the Junior Society. Their February 1988 production of "Oklahoma!" earned them the coveted Accolade of Excellence from the National Operatic and Dramatic Association. Their next show is "Half A Sixpence" in February.

Next April we will be producing another musical "Calamity Jane" which promises to be a first class show. I do hope we shall be seeing you and your friends again but, in the meantime may I wish you all a joyous Christmas and, of course, an enjoyable evening in the company of Bunthorne and Co.!

A NOTE TO ALL ASPIRING AESTHETICS

"Patience" was first produced on 23 April 1881 at the Opera Comique, before transferring to the newly built Savoy Theatre (the first with electric lighting in London) on October 10 1881 to complete a run of 578 performances. It satirised (if a little late on) the craze of aestheticism, begun (in 1849) by the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood of poets and painters, and finally made ridiculous by Oscar Fingall O'Flahertie Wills Wilde. The craze had already been satirised by leading dramatist F.C. Burnard in "The Colonel" and more famously, by George du Maurier's cartoons in "Punch". Gilbert and Sullivan did not dislike the idea so much as its execution; self-indulgent men and women saying much and doing very little. However, it is their satire on this "medieval affectation" that has survived.

In fact, the opera began life based on one of Gilbert's "Bab Ballads", a series of comic verses published in the "Fun" magazine, a rival to "Punch". "The Rival Curates" was altered to the aesthetic movement, then the idea dropped because of the difficulty in dressing the chorus, and finally re-instated when the curate theme became unworkable. Six months' work on the libretto featuring the curate Rev. Lawn Tennyson ended up as a curiosity manuscript in the British Library, and the opera again dealt with "the perception of the beautiful in nature and art".

" 'Patience' is the tribute which mediocrity pays to genius" OSCAR WILDE
